

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PathBinder Publishing LLC announces the publication of the debut children's book by Northwest Ohio author Tonalee Shinabery-King.

In More Than a Mushroom Hunt, children are encouraged to pull on their red rubber boots and go along on a sensory-rich quest through the woods with a girl and her father. The pair encounter forest animals, paw-paws, wildflowers, and many kinds of mushrooms on their adventure.

Shinabery-King's debut picture book not only is based on an adventure she had with her father when she was young, but it also draws from her 35-plus years as an educator and her time at the Fort Wayne (Indiana) Zoo honing her appreciation for conservation. She resides in rural Ohio, still searches for mushrooms, and listens for the frog chorus with her husband. They are the parents to two grown daughters.

The book is beautifully illustrated by five different artists.

From the publisher: "More Than a Mushroom Hunt educates and entertains children about the great outdoors through a parent/child bonding adventure. The author helps children appreciate the sights, sounds, and tastes of the woods."

More Than a Mushroom Hunt is available for presale now in hardback and paperback at all the usual outlets, including Ingram's Bookshop.org, Amazon, Barnes & Noble, and in bookstores. It goes on sale to the general public on November 6.

Tonalee is available for interviews and programs and can be reached at 419-749-2002 or via email at klpp1985@gmail.com.
